

Association of Earth Science Editors 54th Annual Meeting Columbus, Ohio, USA

September 30–October 3, 2020

The 54th annual meeting of the Association of Earth Science Editors will take place in Columbus, Ohio, September 30–October 3, 2020. This year's theme is "Effectively Communicating Geoscience in the Public Sphere." The full schedule of programs, including keynote speaker, is being compiled, but the meeting hotel is set and a field trip has been arranged.

This year's meeting will be hosted by the Ohio Department of Natural Resources, Division of Geological Survey. Traditionally referred to as the Ohio Geological Survey, it is Ohio's oldest natural resources agency, dating back to 1837, and a charter division of the ODNR in 1949. The AESE meeting field trip will be led by Erika Danielsen and Sam Hulett, both with the Ohio Geological Survey. The trip will highlight Central Ohio geology, which features Devonian and Mississippian rocks, and the influence of the Acadian Orogeny at the western edge of the Appalachian Basin.

The meeting hotel is the Hilton Garden Inn – University Area, near The Ohio State University campus. Learn about the hotel's amenities at www.hilton.com/en/hotels/cmhuagi-hilton-garden-inn-columbus-university-area. About AESE

The Association of Earth Science Editors is an organization of editors, journal managers and others concerned with publication in the earth sciences. The goals of the organization are to strengthen the profession of earth science editing, and to foster education and improve communication in the earth sciences that will lead to more effective dissemination of earth science information to the scientific community, educators, students, and the public. Our members include editors of North American earth-science journals, editing and publishing personnel with state/provincial and federal geological surveys and with commercial firms, editors of reports prepared for geological consultants, and others interested in earth-science publishing.
